ABOUT THE SEMINAR:

He laid emphasis on the fact that knowing yourself is the first motive. He then had a fruitful discussion with the audience that how can one ace their interview by understanding how a panelist thinks and asks questions. The most common question to be asked whether one goes for an MBA or a job is “Tell me about yourself”. The speaker with his so many years of experience, presented his point of view on what is the ideology and motive of the panel behind asking this question. He taught the audience on how they can run their whole interview on the basis of their introduction and ace it. The audience was then given the power to role play a panelist and ask questions from the speaker based on his introduction. He elaborated on the fact that the Panel goes for vibes and not just the answers. They expect you to be confident and have a good body language. He then told everyone that students from all the fields can do wonders in an MBA, it is not just restricted to students who studied a particular subject in their undergraduate courses. An MBA opens the gate for ample of opportunities for the students. He then informed everyone on the kind of profile one should have to get into top B-Schools. He emphasised on the 5 things that you are assessed on during your MBA interview. He made everyone aware about the Thapar MBA Program and gave the interested students the official number for Thapar admission procedure.
